

The benefits I receive from the instant traffic and weather channels is priceless. Not only do I get incredible radio content with no commercials but I receive valuable information that saves me time and money. I no longer have to listen to hours of commercials just to get a short traffic report. My significant other lives just north of Baltimore. Because of XM I can check the traffic in both Washington Dc, and Baltimore from Richmond. Without XM this would not be possible. I can then wait for them to say traffic conditions are green before I leave from Richmond. The reports also give me tons of notice to problems, so that on my way up 95 I can adjust my route well in advance. With gas prices so high this is an incredible money saver. No longer do I waste gas sitting in traffic for hours around the beltway. Taking away this service would be ridiculous. I pay for this service and XM constantly gives me my money's worth. No other organization can come close to the quality of these channels and they should not complain just because their technology is obsolete. I have had XM from the first day it was available and I will have XM till the day I go deaf from old age. It is and will continue to be the greatest thing to happen to music in decades.

Jeff Caldwell